

Wait on the Lord!

When my son Sam was in 6th grade, his life was tough and every night I would pray for God to help him, because I was running out of ideas and the school system was not a big help to my son. One night I read John chapter 9, “Jesus Heals a Man Born Blind” I knew that the Lord would work a miracle in Sam, but the wait was so long about 10 years. As each year of Sam’s life went forward, so did little miracles, our church (Sunday School, Youth Group, Fred Camp & Furniture Bank) had a big play in Sam’s life, they supported him and me. Now let’s fast forward to 2020, (a challenge year for all of us) Sam is 22 years old. The Wayfarers are reading a Max Lucado book titled You’ll Get Through This; chapter 6 is titled “Wait While God Works” It suddenly hit me, all of Sam’s life I’ve been praying for God to work a miracle and let Sam grow and become independent. God has performed that miracle, Thank you Lord! What do they say, be careful what you pray for! On August 18, 2020 Sam departed Virginia for the journey of his life. Sam researched places to live, best job market, best taxes and so on. He picked Green Bay, WI. He took 2 days and traveled over 900 miles on the back roads to Green Bay, WI. Mind you, this son of mine, never drove more than 1 hour alone. By the middle of September, he had an apartment and a temporary job. (I had to cosign for his apartment, but he did everything on his own.) I’m so proud of him, but what an empty feeling it has left in me. I continue to pray for Sam, to meet Christian friends, find a permanent job (one that will use his talents for the good of God), and the Lord to keep him safe.
